Report Was Circulated at New York That Strike Breakers Are to Be Held In Readiness, but This Is Denied.

New York, March 30 .- Under Philadelphia date President Daer of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad company sent the following message to John Mitchell. Its publication was authorized:

"Is it true that pending negotiations you have, as stated in the newspapers, ordered your followers not to work in anthracite mines after April 1?

"GEORGE F. BAER."

It was also stated at noon Friday at operators' headquarters that neither Mr. Baer nor any other of the presidents of anthracite coal-carrying rail-roads had yet received any word from Indianapolis telling of the order of hard-coal miners to strike on Monday. It was reported at this city that some anthracite railroads had prepared for "Whereas, The coal operators and the representatives of the miners of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Western Pennsylvania, met in Indianapolis at the suggestion of the president of the United States for the purpose of endeavoring to agree upon a scale of wages and mining conditions for a period beginning April 1, 1906, and the parties having been unable to reach an agreement, and having adjourned sine die, be it

Roosevelt has authorized the publication of two telegrams received by him Shreveport, March 30.-A special Thursday night. One came from John K. Winder, chairman of the Bituminous Coal Operators' association at Indianapolis, and the other from John Mitchell, president of the United Mine Workers of America and Francis L. Robbins, the largest coal operator in the Pittsburg district. The telegram of Winder proposes that the president of Winder proposes that the president appoint a commission to investigate all matters which, in the judgment of such commission, had an important bearing on the scale of wages which should be paid all classes of labor in coal mines of territory involved. The telegram signed by Mitchell and Robbins takes issue with the statement made by Winder, saying that it does not represent real facts. They assert that one-half the total tonnage of western Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and ern Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois is produced by operators who are willing to pay the compromise scale.

TEST OF FLUID.

Effort to Prove or Disprove Theory of Patrick Will Be Made.

New York, March 30.-Four years after the date on which he was convicted of the murder of William Marsh Rice, the Texas millionaire, Albert T. Patrick's plea that an actual test be made to prove or disprove his contention that embraming fluid and not chloroform was the cause of the condition of Rice's body, was granted Thursday. It was the office of District Attorney Jerome and not the defense of Patrick, however, which has undertaken the investigation. Several time during the years in which Patrick has fought his case with legal moves directed from the death chamber in the Sing Sing prison, the convicted man has begged of condemned prisoners to allow his counsel to experiment on their bodies after death in order to disprove that Rice died from the application of chloroform as Valet Jones testified and to prove Valet Jones testified, and to prove Patrick's allegation that Rice died of general debilty. It was Patrick's contention that embalming fluid administered after Rice's death produced and a produced in another case condiwould produce in another case, condi-tions such as physicians who testofied in the case ascribed to chloroform poisoning.

It was announced from District Attorney Jerome's office that experiments to test Patrick's theory have been begun under the direction of that office. The two persons whose bodies are to be used in either wide. be used in either aid in giving Patrick his liberty or defeating his efforts to secure a new trial, are patients who died in the Metropolitan hospital a few days ago, and the disposition of whose bodies was under the control of Dr. Louis Schultz.

He said the change had affected all range states. The petition urged the senate to resist all efforts to seriously amend the bill as being mere subterfuges on the part of operation of the Penguins mostly spend their lives on the water, but when, during the breeding season, they are obliged to seek the shore they establish cities, many acres often being laid out in squares, composed of what might be called streets, running at right angles. The birds not only lay out their city after picking up all the loose stones till the whole place is as smooth as a board floor, but they take possession in couples, each pair selecting a home site, not to build a nest, but merely to secure a particular spot on the bare ground.

The hen lays one egg, and only one, and during the time of incubation the male bird brings her food from the sea or sits on the egg awhile himself if she wants to go out and take a swim. The lady penguins grow so fat and sleek under the good care of their faithful mates that they are eagerly hunted at the breeding season.

The old birds are tough and fishy, but the tender young matrons are in great demand, both for their oil and flesh. Even the eggs have an oily and fishy flavor and taste as hens' eggs might if cooked in paraffin. The penguin has wings, like other birds, but they are altogether too short to fly with, though they assist him somewhat in waddling over the ground .-Cornhill Magazine.

Nature's Perch Clamp.

"Chickens and other birds roosting on a perch no bigger than a lead pencil never fall off. Do you know why? said a farmer.

"The tendon of a roosting bird's leg is so constructed that when the leg is bent at the knee the claws have to contract-can't open till the leg is straightened out again,

"Thus a chicken gets on its perch, bends its knee to be comfortable and with that bending locks itself, as with a key, to the wood. It can't fall off. Put a chicken on your finger and then make it sit down. Its claws will clamp your finger tight and be unable to let go until the bird stands up again. Nature, very kindly, has so constructed roosting birds that the act of settling down clamps them to their perch."

Indianapolis, March 24 .- When the joint scale committee of the joint conferences of coal operators and United Mine Workers of Central competitive and Southwestern districts met Saturday there was no indication that the opposing sides were any nearer an agreement than when the January conference adjourned after disagreement. The meeting of the committee of the Central competitive district began at o'clock. It was the understanding prior to the meeting that a vote would be taken early on the proposition of F. L. Carbon Bisulphide Recommended-Corn Bins Should Be Fumigated at Least Twice-Seed Not Injured.

College Station, Texas. -The correspondence reaching us from farmers of the State regarding the destructive work of the corn weevils, has been unusually heavy during the past month. The chief measure recommended was carbon bisulphide, or "high life." present this chemical is the best means of combating these insects on account of its cheapness as well as the handiness with which it can be applied. A number of inquiries have reached us with regard to the greatest amount of carbon bisulphide that can be used on corn without injuring the germinating power of the seed. At the present time we have not on hand absolutely definite information as to the amount of gas that the germ of a given variety of corn can stand without injury, but we state positively that any kind of corn grown in Texas, in fact any kind of seed corn, can be exposed to carbon bisulphide at the rate of one pound to one hundred bushels of grain, or 1,000 cubic feet of space from twenty-four to thirty-six hours without injury. At the same time this fumigation is thoroughly effective in destroying weevils as well as rats, mice and other vermin. Where the bins are tight, so that no great amount of gas can escape within a short time, this fumigation is effective, but in the case of an open crib, such as the old log crib, it is a more serious matter, not only because of the fact that the gas escapes at the sides of the crib, but what is equally as serious, in most cases the weevils themselves escape to the outside of the crib, whence they return after the fumigation is over. It is therefore suggested that every farmer of the State make an attempt during the coming season to procure as tight a bin as possible. Where air holes are necessary they should be thoroughly screened. The building should be isolated from the other farm buildings so that this gas may be used without inconveniencing people in adjoining farm buildings. Where for any reason the farmer cannot tighten his log crib, it would be well to get a good grade of muslin, saturate it with linseed oil, and let it dry in the sunlight. Such a sheet can be folded and laid aside without danger of moulding, and when it is desired to fumigate the corn, tack this over the walls on the outside, which will make the bin gas-tight as well as weevil-proof. After the fumigation this can be removed. Such muslin should not cost more than 6 cents or 7 cents a yard, and if proper care can be taken of it will last for many years,

Do not be satisfied with fumigating the bin at this time but repeat the fumigation in two weeks in order to get the larvae which creek, one red bull, white face, hatch from the eggs, as well as those few weevils that might have years old Will pay $5.00 reward for escaped, or which might have been delivery to C. Two Laymen Have Been Popes.

The canon law does not prescribe If carbon bisulphide is suspected that the pope must be a cardinal or even a cleric. Nevertheless since the election of Urban VI. in 1378 the successful candidates have belonged to the members of the sacred college, although as late as 1758 a noncardinal was voted for several times. At least two laymen-John XIX. (1024) and Adrian V. (1276)—have occupied the papal throne, and there is today nothing to prevent laymen from being created cardinals, although they are not entitled to vote in the conclave unless they can produce a special permit from the late pope.

Beef and Brawn.

It is said of Kean, the actor, that he ate mutton before playing the part of lover, beef before playing that of murderer and pork before assuming the character of a tyrant. That may be merely a story or a fact, but it is a well known truth that beef will enable more exhausting muscular work to be done than will mutton, so there may be something in the "roast beef of old England." In the eighteenth century this was one of the English "gods."

A STORY OF WEBSTER

ONE OCCASION WHEN DANIEL WAS DEEPLY HUMILIATED.

An Incident Which Shocked and Surprised Him Into Tears - The Admiration, the Loyalty and the Generosity of His Circle of Friends.

The following incident in the life of Daniel Webster was related to the writer by the late Joshua Seward:

Mr. Seward came to Woburn from Boston in the early seventies and bought a farm, where he lived until his death in 1885. He was a native of the New Hampshire "Peace City," from which place he came to Boston in early manhood and later engaged in the livery business off School street. He was a genial, social, active young man, and in a short time many of the business and professional men of the city were his friends and patrons. Daniel Webster, then in the fullness of his masterly manhood, was his particular friend and most favored patron. One year Webster early engaged to deliver the Fourth of July oration in the city.

A public procession was then an important feature of the celebration, and the orator of the day was the chief person of distinction in the parade. In those days there were no four wheeled vehicles for convenience or for pleasure. A chaise was the proper carriage for gentlemen to use. Webster was popular and proud as popular. He saw no chaise in the city as good as he desired to appear in on that important occasion, and therefore he ordered one to be built by the principal carriage maker of the city (Sargent, I think it was), to be ready for use on that day. In the morning of the Fourth he appeared at Seward's stable office and requested Seward to go to the carriage shop and get the chaise he had ordered. Seward harnessed a horse and went to the carriage shop as directed and told the proprietor he had come for Mr. Webster's chaise. The proprietor in firm and measured tones that could not be misunderstood asked, "Did Mr. Webster send the money to pay for the chaise?

In relating this to me Seward said: "I was never so astonished in my life! I should have been less surprised if he had raised his fist and knocked me down. I had no thought that there was a man living who had ever heard of the great Webster, the godlike Daniel, who would or who could have denied him any request it was possible to grant. I could only say, 'He sent no money by me.' 'Then,' said the proprietor, 'tell him he can have the chaise when he sends the money to pay for it and not till then.' " Seward said he was never in such a dilemma in all his life. He could not go back and tell that great man, whom he adored, that he could not have the chaise till he paid for it. And yet he must go back and tell him something. But what could he tell him? Finally, after much thought and study it occurred to him' that he had a new chaise which he would offer to Webster and tell him that the varnish on the one he had ordered was not yet hard and that it would be liable to injure if taken out in the heat and dust of that public day. Webster met Seward at the door when he returned, and before Webster could ask a question Seward was telling him the story he had invented on the way home. Webster made no reply, but accepted Seward's statement as true and rode in his chaise that day.

About a week later Webster came again and said to Seward, "I think the varnish on that chaise is hard now, and you may go down and get it." Seward said: "With a heavy heart I harnessed a horse and went again to the shop. I knew I should not get the chaise, and I was not disappointed. In the same manner I was asked the same question as before. I could not invent another story that would be credible and was therefore compelled to go back and tell him the truth." Webster was impatiently awaiting Seward's return, and when in hailing distance he called to Seward: "Where is the chaise? What is the trouble?" Seward approached him more closely and in tones so low that no one could overhear him replied, "He told me to tell you that you could have the chaise when you sent the money to pay for it and not before." Webster stood silent an instant and then with voice trembling with emotion exclaimed, "My God. Joshua, did he say that?" and sank into a nearby chair and cried as would a deeply aggrieved child of six summers. It is well known that Webster would incur debt, apparently with no thought that there were two parties to a contract, a creditor and a debtor, and that their moral obligations were coequal. Consequently his creditors so multiplied and his indebtedness so increased as to interfere with his political plans, if not, indeed, threaten his political future. At this time his friends came to his aid and, it is said, raised the sum of $40,000 to cancel his indebtedness and relieve him from the further annoyance and pressure of his creditors. When we realize that $40,-000 was a larger sum to raise then for any purpose than would be $200,000 today we have some measure of the admiration and the loyalty of his friends.-H. C. Hall in Boston Tran-

COMPLETELY DESTROYED.

Main Buildig of University of Idaho Consumed by Fire.

Moscow, Idaho, March 30 .- The main building of the University of Idaho was completely destroyed by fire early Friday. The other buildings composing the institution were not damaged, but owing to limited fire fighting apparatus had narrow escapes. The building destroyed contained seventy-five rooms, including offices of the president, registrar and directors of the agricultural experiment station and chemical laboratory and was 100 feet square. One man was asleep in the building at the time of the fire, but escaped. The origin is not known.

SLIGHT LEAD FOR DAVIS.

Friends of Senator Berry Refuse to Concede His Defeat.

Little Rock, March 30.-Senator election of Governor Davis to the United States senate, notwithstanding the latter claims the victory. Returns from fifty-five counties place Davis slightly in the lead, but his majority in these counties, as compared with his vote two years ago, has been reduced more than 12,000. Indications Friday at noon were that belated returns would give Davis a majority on face of returns, but there will likely be a contest before the Democratic

SENTIMENTAL FONDNESS.

For This Reason Large Amount Realized ror a Contract.

Chicago, March 30.-Wm. H. Gray was able to get $125,000 for a life insurance contract which he sold to E. I. Rosenfeld because of his sentimental fondness for it, he said. Gray was formerly manager and controller of the Knights Templars and Masons'

tary bankruptcy proceedings, which are again being pushed against Rosenfeld, manager of the Western. Gray's Knights Templars' contract brought the $125,000. It is an asset of his estate, and Attorney S. O. Levenson was endeavoring to learn its intrinsic value.

"I sold it with hesitancy," said the witness. There was a good deal of sentiment connected with it. I built up the business, and when I sold that contract I left the room with tears in Austin, March 30 .- The scene of action on the blanket primary proposi-

The house was in session only half an hour Friday morning. As soon as it convened the resoltuion presented Thursday requesting the governor to furnish letters to the legislature received from those 108 members agreeing to come to Austin and serve free and only correct section 120 of the lection law and have these letters printed in the journal was adopted by viva voce vote.

The senate election bill was then taken up on final passage and was passed finally by vote of 74 to 22 with planket primary amendment attached to it. The bill was then sent to the senate and house recessed to 3 o'clock

As soon as the bill reached the senate Senator Looney moved that the senate do not concur in house amendments and ased for a free conference committee. This brought those in favor of the blanket primary to their feet in opposition to the motion. At this point Senator Davidson had read a letter to the governor from the com-mittee from the house and senate asking the governor to convene the legislature in special session for the specific purpose of correcting section 120 and to serve free.

Senator Faulk, an advocate of the blanket primary, moved that the senate concur in house amendment.

Senator Faulk then occupied the floor and declared that ninety-nine out of every hundred of his constituents favored the blanket primary, and that the senate should concur in house amendment. He declared that the people should say who their governor should be, and not the politicians.

Senator Smith of Denton then took the floor in favor of the blanket primary. He declared that there some powerful interest behind all this matter. He declared that a certain paper was trying to whip legislature into line against passing the blanket primary amendment. He declared he Life Indemnity company, which was absorbed by the Western Life Indemnity company. The latter has been attacked in the Federal courts.

Wean in volunin the matter.

Senator Harper made an impassioned speech, in which he spoke in favor of the blanket primary. He said that e senate now has a chance to vote for it and it should do so. It was not for the governor to say what the legislature should do, but for the legislature to act as it saw fit. He declared that not to adopt the blanket primary for Bell for governor, and was not ashamed of it, but that neither Bell or any of his friends had ever inti-mated to him what they wanted or favored in the matter.

The senate, by a vote of 18 to 12. refused to take up and consider the house mileage and per diem bill.

The senate adopted a resolution requesting the governor and Judge Terrell to turn over letters from senators who agreed to come to Austin for the sole purpose of correcting section 120 to be furnished the senate and printed in the journal.

The railroad commission issued notice for hearing for April 17 to take up application of certain railroads asking for authority for application of milling in transit arrangement on shipments of rice and rice products.
